Yeah, we have to somehow merge the task manager and the progress module. They're both meant to track long running tasks.

Agreed, but note that they are currently tracking different things. The former keeps track of ongoing actions triggered by the dashboard, while the latter shows the progress of Ceph-internal activities. Not sure if they can be merged that easily, but I agree it would be a good idea to evaluate that.

Well, one keeps track of actions from the dashboard, the other one keeps track of actions from the orchestrator.
